Curiosity towards the body and learning to love your body are basic ingredients for children's healthy development and later on in life as adults too. Children become aware of these important factors in the early stages of life when they start to learn to recognize his or her body and how to control it. This childrens book was written for my grandchildren. The book was written out of love for kids aged between 18 months to 3 years of age, at which point children are discovering their bodies and their ability to control them, especially whilst dealing with the process of potty training. This children's book is designed to enable them to process this new experience out of love for themselves and their needs whilst developing curiosity towards their bodies and their environment. This childrens book collection was written to help parents bring up their children as healthy and happy kids.
